IOREBA installs new slate of officers for 2010-2011

The Industrial and Office Real Estate Brokers Association of the New York Metropolitan Area, Inc. (IOREBA) recently announced the installation of its officers for 2010-2011. One of the nation's oldest and largest regional commercial real estate trade groups, IOREBA has roots dating back to 1927 and a membership of brokerage and industry-related professionals based in New Jersey, New York, Connecticut and Pennsylvania.

The new slate of officers is headed by president Sean Brady. Brady is senior director of Cushman & Wakefield in East Rutherford, and has been involved with IOREBA for 25 years. Most recently, he served as the group's vice-president and has been instrumental in expanding the organization in both membership and member value.

"The mission of IOREBA officers is to encourage high ethical standards and unite our members," Brady said. "Networking is an integral part of doing business, especially in today's economy. Our members continually share perspectives, knowledge and skills that develop into valuable contacts and business opportunities."

David Simon, principal and chief operating officer of Cassidy Turley, New Jersey region, in Teaneck, will serve as vice-president; Bob Martie, executive vice-president, New Jersey region of Colliers International in Parsippany-Princeton, will serve as secretary; and Marc Graham, director of Cushman & Wakefield, will serve as treasurer. IOREBA's officers also include a 15-member executive committee and a senior council comprised of more than 30 industry leaders and past presidents.

IOREBA will be incorporating a new program, IOREBA

University, to provide members with information on social media and its importance within the real estate industry.

IOREBA outgoing president for 2009-2010 Charles Logan Jr., president and chief executive officer of The Aztec Corp. in Iselin, will spearhead IOREBA University.

"It has been an honor to lead this organization and see the hard work and planning come together to create a successful agenda of events while inducting 52 new members," Logan said. "The last 12 months have marked an extraordinary year of growth for IOREBA. I look forward to its continued success through this talented and seasoned group of real estate professionals under Sean's direction."

IOREBA's networking events include an annual Developer's Night and a golf, tennis and dinner outing.

In addition, IOREBA awards cash scholarships annually to undergraduates studying real estate at universities and colleges in its members' states.

In recent years, IOREBA's funds also have been granted for special needs to high schools. ♦
